Results Comparative

Posted by jkastanos - 2011/03/10 17:34

_____

When dealing with quiz results it would be really interesting to have more data than single-user stats. So adding total users statistics would be a great add-on.

There would be the average score for every quiz, and category. And it could show the amount of results in every percentage, 10%, 20%... that also can be respresented with graphics, exportable to front-end. There every user could see his global position

============================================================================