
Question Names

Currently the questions in the question bank are identified by the wording in the question asked.

It would be very useful to be able to allocate a separate name to a question in the question bank.

This way, if a user has a very large numbers of questions, each question could be allocated a name that is somehow meaningful to the person setting the quiz, therefore making the creation of quizzes easier.

Do you mean "tags" for questions?

No, I was thinking of making it possible to allocate each question a field for a "name" which would uniquely identify it in the Question Bank.

It seems you mean something like unique alias. We will think about implementation this feature in a future release.
