Item label behind first item

Posted by keith@designrule.co.uk - 2012/10/04 14:39

_____

Hello there and let me congratulate you on a find menu system. I have tried a few and this is head and shoulders above the rest.

I have installed and formatted the menu and have come across a problem i cannot solve.

There seems to be a menu label hiding behind my first menu item (HOME). The problem is when i wish to have a top border on the button, the hidden tab is uncovered.

I have tried to get in and delete it and style it out individually, but i am no expert at this.

Can you shed any light on the solution for me?

http://79.170.44.93/designrule.co.uk/ http://www.ari-soft.com/images/fbfiles/images/home_tab_problem.png

==

Re:Item label behind first item

Posted by admin - 2012/10/04 15:40

_____

Hello,

We can't reproduce the problem. What browser do you use?

Regards,
ARI Soft

==

Re:Item label behind first item

Posted by keith@designrule.co.uk - 2012/10/04 15:43

_____

Thanks for the prompt reply. I am using Firefox, Chrome and IE 8.

Not sure why you can't see it.

Could you try again?

==

Re:Item label behind first item

Posted by admin - 2012/10/04 15:46

_____

This problem with the following HTML code in your site template:

It doesn't contain tag. The code should look like:

Regards,
ARI Soft

==

Re:Item label behind first item

_____

Sorry for the delay.

Thank you so much for this solution, it was an oversight from myself, silly one at that.

Excellent support coupled with an excellent product, a winning combination!

Keith

==