Submenu Display Issue

Posted by SrWebLacky - 2010/09/19 00:12

Hello,

I have looked through a lot of the posts here regarding this issue. My submenus are displaying below another element. When "inspecting" the element using the Google Chrome tools, if I manually change the z-index for the parent div of the hidden menu, it displays fine. However, I can't seem to figure out how to make this permanent. The site in question is http://valleyfellowshipkc.org. The element that is partially blocking the bottom of the expanded menu is a slide show extension.

Any guidance here would be most appreciated.

Mark

==========

Re:Submenu Display Issue

Posted by admin - 2010/09/20 09:37

Hello,

Add the following CSS rules:

```
#InnerContainer
{
  position: relative;
}

.Valley-Fellowship #Header
{
  position: relative;
  z-index: 99;
}

.Valley-Fellowship #Main-Content
{
  position: relative;
  z-index: 10;
}
```

Regards,
ARI Soft

==========