Hidden/Cut Off SubMenu Items

Posted by davidstone - 2010/07/30 05:10

_____

Hi there, I have a problem with menu. The Submenus are not being displayed but, rather cutoff and hidden behind other objects in my template. Can you help me out with this? I just KNOW there some code that you are going to give me but... If you give me a code, can you tell me exactly where to put it? I am using ARI Ext Menu. My site is blocked for maintenance but, I can make it LIVE if you need me to. I am using the menu as a "mainmenu", which is aligned at the top. By the way, can you also tell me how to change the colors of the menu too? Looking forward!!!---- David Stone.

My website is www.morefittraining.com

Add the following CSS rule:

#body .main .row-top-menu
{
  overflow: visible;
```

Great! It worked like a charm! Next, can you lead me to where I can change the color of the structure? which .css file do I edit? Or is there something else that I have to do?

You can edit /modules/mod_ariextmenu/mod_ariextmenu/js/css/menu.min.css file or add necessary CSS rules to 'CSS Styles' property in module settings. Could you specify what colors you want to change that we can provide CSS rules for them.

Well, can I make the menu transparent so It can reveal the color of the object behind it? If you want a color that I was looking for, maybe a shade of red or rather something close to a royal blue? Is there a CSS Color Rule Chart that I can find with a scheme of colors and codes? Or can you give me the code structure that I will need to paste after altering with a generic color and I will figure out the rest maybe?

Also, you have been quite helpful and seriously quick with your support and responses. I thank you for that.

_____

Use the following CSS rule that do background of the menu transparent:

.ux-menu-container .ux-menu a
  background: transparent none;
}
```

If you use FireFox browser, FireBug plugin can be helpful for investigate HTML document structure and styles.
