Multiple Menus?

Posted by jess8907 - 2010/09/10 13:31

Hi, I'm having issues with the submenu items not showing up properly. I'm not sure what I can do since I have more than one menu on the page, can you please help? I need to have the submenu items display over the content and modules that show up next to them. Also, there is another menu that is to the right of the page and since it's at the end of the main body, it won't expand past that.

the web address is www.idealeaseresourcecenter.com/portaldirect and you can log in to the site by using the username testuser@test.com and the password of test.

Please let me know what I can do to have these show up properly.

Thank you,

Jessica

_____

Hello,

Add the following CSS rule:

body .body-shadows-light .module-inner2
{
 overflow: visible;
}

To site template CSS file or to 'CSS Styles' parameter in module settings.

I added that to the module called "Internal Programs" in the CSS styles parameter but it's still not working. Any thoughts?

Ok, nevermind. It's sort of working now. The sub items are showing, but they're going behind the other menu. And that code also caused a distortion in the module that was in the center of the screen.

Issue with sub-menu can be fixed if your site template supports 'Module prefix' parameter. If you don't know about it, open module settings page and type '_extmenu' in 'Module Class Suffix' parameter. After this contact us that we can check it.

My template does support module prefixes, which module do I add that prefix to though? The menus that I created or to the module that is now distorted? Would this be easier if you had back-end access to my site?

Yes, if you provide temporary access to your Joomla! backend by email we can configure the menus.
