
Moving submenu position with multiple Instances

Posted by jparker3119 - 2010/10/02 07:53

I am unable to determine how to modify the css so as to move the submenus under and to the left margin of the parent link.

I have two instances of Ext Menu on the page. The reason for two is that a module can be designated a particular "site" template and I have two presently and will have three "site templates each designated to a particular Ext Menu.

You can view the site at deai.japansailing.jp

Thanks in advance for your help.

Jim

I have subsequently found a couple of answers to my above question....or so I think.

1. Apparently the horizontal/vertical setting in the module panel effects whether or not the submenus are displayed to the right or the left under the main link.

2. I found that by placing a return at the end of each definition in the CSS page aided me in understanding the coding.

However, I still have a question. As I remarked above, I am using a different Joomla template for each of the modules. Is it possible to similar use a different css definition file for the modules when displayed in the different templates?

Thanks,

Jim

=====

Re:Moving submenu position with multiple Instances

Posted by admin - 2010/10/04 06:44

Hello,

You can override module styles in template CSS file. The module doesn't provide ability to load different CSS files depends on selected site template.

Regards,

ARI Soft

=====