Is it possible to add a 'Next' button that will advance to the next page on click?

Currently the extension doesn't provide this ability, but if you say where you want to see it we'll try to adjust the module and add this possibility.

Thanks! There are two possibilities:

1.) add an option to use the existing arrow buttons to do next/previous page instead of moving the thumbnails.

btw, you should consider making the arrow buttons much bigger, so they are more prominent - especially important for mobile devices such as the iPad.

2.) Add 'Web 2.0' arrows that float over the page content, centered vertically with the back button on the left side of the page and the Next button on the right.

I'd be most grateful for either one, and I think it would be a good usability fix for this module;)

We'll implement the second variant in the next version of the module and try to release it till the end of this week.

We have updated the module and new version provides ability to show next and prev navigation buttons. Updated module is available in "Member Area" on our site. Download and upgrade it.
