Hello,

We can adjust the extension and add ability to specify page size and page number for loaded photos from a Flickr photoset. In this case you can loaded different Flickr photoset pages in different articles. Is it suitable for you?

Unfortunately, this is difficult to implement!

Is it not possible to say on the first page are the first 30 frames to see on the second page the next 30 frames, etc.?

What is meant witch "Group" in the module parameters??? How i can use this?

Best Regards

Patrick

1. If we adjust the extension and add ability to specify page number for Flickr photosets, you can configure one module instance and load it into articles with help Modules Anywhere plugin and override only page number parameter. Code will look like:

{module 73|flickr_pageNumber=2}

and it will provide ability to load the same module with different page number into different articles. Is it suitable?

2. The lightbox provides navigation between items with the same group. For example if several module instances are used on a page and the same group name is defined for these module instances, the lightbox will provide navigation with help "Next" and "Prev" buttons between items from all "ARI Sexy Lightbox" module instances.
