Display all Flickr photosets based on userid

Hi

Is it possible to show all photosets from a Flickr user, based on the Flickr userid? Preferably by the Ari Sexy Lightbox module.

I'd like to display all photosets, in an article, where each photoset is represented by a single image from the photoset and the photoset name. When clicking on one of the photos, the entire set is opened in gallery mode. New photosets added to the Flickr account should pop up as a single image the next time the page is loaded. Is this possible?

Arnstein

Hello,

Currently the module can display all photos from all photosets by Flickr user id or display the first image from all photos and if a user clicks by this image display others in lightbox. Regarding your requirement, we can update the module that this provides this possibility, but it takes a couple of days.

Great, I'll be waiting. It would also be nice if the order of photosets displayed can be according to "most recently updated" on flickr (i.e. the photoset with the latest uploaded photos will be displayed on top).

We'll try to respect your wishes. If Flickr API provides possibility to set sort field, we'll implement this feature.

Hello,

We have updated the extension. New version provides possibility to show the first image of each photoset by user id(s) and if a user clicks by this image show in lightbox other images from selected photoset. Unfortunately Flickr API doesn't provide ability to get images in specific order, you can read about Flickr API here. We can implement sorting in the component by created or last modified data, but this sorting will work only if all images from photoset will be selected.

PS: Updated version of the extension you can download in 'Member Area' on our site. After this upgrade 'ARI Sexy Lightbox' module and 'System - ARI Sexy Lightbox Anywhere' plugin. In module you can find new 'Layout type' which is called 'Flickr photosets'.

Hi

Thank you, it works. However the photosets displayed by the module does now show the photo title instead of the photoset title as it does when I display photosets with the plugin. The sort function is not important.
