
Loading modules in sexy lightbox

Posted by maggoo - 2010/09/15 17:59

Hello,

I am using your sexylightbox lite at the moment, absolutely great!

I am contemplating purchasing the regular version because i want some extra functionality, which i think can be done but i am not quite sure.

I want to make a horizontal menu (not main menu, just an extra) with login/registration/newsletter links. This i want in one template position, and all links of the menu i want to open in a seperate sexylightbox. I guess this can't be done with the lite version (well that's fair:)), but since the regular version can load modules i was wondering whether the above would be possible in one template position.

If this is possible could you also please tell me when i load a login module in the lightbox if further styling is needed or that the lightbox automagically gives a nice padding etc.

Thanks in advance!

Ah yes, the plugin of the regular version can still be called with a rel can it?

=====

Re>Loading modules in sexy lightbox

Posted by admin - 2010/09/15 18:45

Hello,

'ARI Sexy Lightbox' package contains 'System - ARI Sexy Lightbox' plugin which works like 'ARI Sexy Lightbox Lite' plugin, but it works in any content not only in Joomla! articles. Regarding loading Joomla! module from menu link, 'ARI Sexy Lightbox' module and 'System - ARI Sexy Lightbox Anywhere' plugin provide this ability, but it can cause problem with HTML markup if you want to use it in menu link, but for each module which you want to load from menu can be created article where module can be placed and load in the lightbox articles with modules. It helps to control module styles.

Regards,
ARI Soft

=====

Re>Loading modules in sexy lightbox

Posted by maggoo - 2010/09/17 12:42

Bought the extension, very happy with it, menu works without any problems. Keep it up:)

=====