
show just the article

Posted by Lunachriz - 2010/05/23 21:34

Hi,

Is there a possibility that you can only show the article and not the entire webpage?

I tried several options but it doesn't work.

thanks Lunachriz

Hello,

You can use the following code in Joomla! articles for showing an article in lightbox:

Show article

only replace with necessary article id.

Oh, sorry.

I did get a reply, but that wasn't the full answer. Now I see the whole message.

ok, thanks for the answer. It works!!!

Now I have only one question left.

How can you manage CSS for the articles??

Could you explain your needs? You can apply necessary styles for an article when editing article in WYSIWYG editor or you mean something another?

normal by css you define the layout: font-size, color, font-family etc.

If I open the article in the lightbox there is a standard font, size, etc.

Do you have to give in the different details in the editor or is the CSS doing that??

The extension loads an article into iframe and use template component layout for showing article. It depends on your template what CSS files it loads for component layout. You can see it in component.php file in template folder.

If I look in my templates-folder than you see different templates. In the folder from the template I use there is a css and images folder and a index.php, but no component.php?! Normal a article takes the layout of the css from that template??

If a template doesn't provide component layout (component.php file), Joomla! will use /templates/system/component.php file. You can contact your template developers and ask why their template doesn't contain component layout or if you have technical knowledge, you can create this file by yourself.

We can try to help you, if you provide index.php file of your template by email and say link to page where you use 'ARI Sexy Lightbox Lite' plugin.
