Posted by Mogwai - 2017/06/18 19:43

Hello,

I would like to have the border around the thumb in the article much thinner. Here is an example of one page where I use also other photo galleries besides the one from ARI: Photos

The settings for the simple gallery in the module are:

Container CSS class (empty)
Rows CSS classess: odd;even

Where and how can I change that the border is thin? I use the template full_screen_8 - Standard from JoomSpirit and there is no possibility to add anything to add custom css like in my Joomlage templates.

Thank you, regards
Mogwai

Hello,

Thank you for your reply.

In the provided link in my previous post you can see two thumbs with a thin grey border. The right thumb is for the ARI Photo Gallery and has this huge grey border. I would want that much smaller, maybe 1 or 2 px.

Add the following CSS rule to a site template CSS file:

BODY .ari-pg-image IMG {padding:0;}

It can be added only to one CSS file. For example to main.css or template.css

Hi,

It does not work. First I tried it in the template.css, then in main.css. No change, the big border remains at that right thumbnail.

See how it looks when we add the CSS rule:

Try to clean browser's cache.

PS: We can help to do it if you provide a temporary access to your J! backend by email.

Hi,

Thank you for your effort, but the thick "border" is still around the right thumbnail, it does not look like the previous two thumbs.

I have the same problem in another page - there it is with all thumbs, as I only used the ARI Photo Gallery for all thumbs.

It seems that in this template I cannot use the ARI Photo Gallery and have to change all corresponding pages.

The left thumb (yellow) is how it should look like.
The right thumb (red) has this huge light grey border which I don't want.
It is not a nice view to have different kind of thumbs in just one article.

White background on left image is not added by CSS, it is located in the image, the right thumb doesn't contain this background so this is not "ARI Photo Gallery" issue, modify right image and add necessary background.

You can open the thumbnails directly into a browser to see what we mean:

Hi,

Yes, the photos are saved like that, and I don't mean that white background. I mean the grey thick border around each thumbnail in the article, and that comes for sure with the ARI photo gallery. In the page where I have only the right thumbnail with the grey background, the first two thumbs are defined in the gallery I used for them, it is a thin grey outline.

I assume you would not say border for what I mean with the light grey, wide stuff around the thumbs of the ARI Photo Gallery, no clue how it is called.

It's ok, I will uninstall the ARI Photo Gallery and work with another module. Thank you. This topic can be closed.

If you mean this background:

 http://www.ari-soft.com/images/fbfiles/images/dog.jpg

It adds by site template. The following CSS rule helps to avoid it:

TABLE.ari-pg-table TR.even TD {
 background: none;
 border-bottom: none;

Yes, that was what I meant. It works. GREAT, thank you very much.
