
Need accessible Table of Contents

Posted by Chumontor - 2011/09/09 05:51

Hi

We like your AriFlip very much. However, is it possible to have Table of Contents along with the AriFlip? Is it something that is underconsideration for development in the future ? Also, if we need to have the AriFlip with the Table of Contents, then will it be possible for you to develop it within shortest possible time for us? If so, what kind of estimate in terms of money and will your developers require to extend AriFlip to have a Table of Contents and also make sure it works in browsers (IE7, IE8, IE9, Safari, FF5, FF56, Chrome). We do need this tool to be accessible. As long as user can use tab to go through each pages and also chose pages from the table of content, we will be fine. Please reply with an estimate as soon as you can on my email address at swagato@energetica.com.au

=====

Re:Need accessible Table of Contents

Posted by admin - 2011/09/12 11:49

Hello,

Could you provide sample how "Table of Contents" should look?

Regards,
ARI Soft

=====

Re:Need accessible Table of Contents

Posted by Chumontor - 2011/09/12 16:51

If you go to this website (<http://www.donatelife.gov.au/book.html#/page/1>), you will notice something similar to Book of Life. We are trying to implement similar at here http://donatelife.dev.energetica.com.au/index.php?option=com_content&view=article&id=744&Itemid=183#/page/1

However, we ran across issues implementing it as in IE 7,8,9 it does not seem to work. Probably we are getting some javascript errors and can not fix yet.

The table of content should look like here <http://www.donatelife.gov.au/book.html#/page/1> . However we need this accessible (such that when user tabs through can open and go to the particular div/p and click on that. And upon clicking, the user is taken to the particular page on the book). Also, we need the conflict/error fixed for Book of Contents at http://donatelife.dev.energetica.com.au/index.php?option=com_content&view=article&id=744&Itemid=183#/page/1

=====

Re:Need accessible Table of Contents

Posted by Chumontor - 2011/09/12 16:55

Hello

If you are willing to atleast fix the IE issues of the book of life @ http://donatelife.dev.energetica.com.au/index.php?option=com_content&view=article&id=744&Itemid=183#/page/1 , please do let us know. I can provide you with a temporary username/password for you to look at it. Let me know where I can email you the access . We deserperately need this fixed at least

=====

Re:Need accessible Table of Contents

Posted by admin - 2011/09/12 19:52

If you mean javascript errors, it is not Flip Book issue, but we can help to fix them if you provide temporary access to your J! backend by email. If you mean another issue, describe it please.

Regards,
ARI Soft

=====