i am finally getting the hang of this. However i want to display a specific table for the user. I will be pulling data and want to display a table with only the users entries in RSForms. I can pull the data and display everyone entries but i only want them to be specific to the user.

is there a code example yo may have

You can use DirectPHP that use ID of logged user in SQL query. You can provide temporary access to your Joomla! backend by email, describe what data and where do you want to show and we will be glad to help you configure the extensions.
