Vertical Menu width

I think I've looked through all the posts on vertical menus but didn't see what I was looking for. I'm have a vertical menu question. How do I set the width of the initial vertical menu to automatic? Currently the width appears to be set and my line items stretch outside the "menu box".

Unfortunately it's behind a firewall and which I don't have control over.

I attached a picture to the original post in hopes that would help.

Considering it's the default setup of the module and it does the same thing in joomla 1.5.x running on openSUSE/apache, Windows/apache and Windows/IIS, I'd hoped you could give me an answer.

Are you telling me you don't know your own code?
Is my only solution is to turn no wrapping off? (which DOES work but not what I'd like)

_____

It can be a problem with site template styles or 3rd party extension styles and it is not possible to detect this type of problem by screenshot.

The template I'm using is the default joomla template: rhuk_milkyway. It has not been altered in any way.
