
Skin instructions for a non-programmer?

Posted by maryswave - 2009/08/18 12:59

The styling is quite different than what I have seen before. I am not a programmer but I have been able to dig through css files and modify them to my liking. The files for the menu are quite different and so I was wondering if there are instructions for the non-programmer? I want to change the color of the back ground, text and the down arrows. Do I just edit the sprite file?

Hello,

You can read this topic on our forum. It contains information where CSS file is located and where you can find info about menu CSS classes.

Hi Team,

I've made some changes to my safe_menu.css <http://www.coasttocountryweddings.com.au> to get it just about right but would like to tweak it further. I cannot locate the place in the .css file where I need to make changes to affect:

Wedding Services menu;

1. There is what looks to be padding of about 20px from top, bottom & left edges to the text that I'd like to close up to about 5px maximum.

2. Presumably if 15px on the left was removed, then likewise the the pale yellow background (.yui-skin-sam UL LI.yuimenuitem-selected) would also move left. Additionally, I'd like extend this pale yellow 'mouse-over' in length to the right edge of the menu/module. This would make it long enough to 'highlight' lengthy/wordier menu option links.

3. I would like to position the background image file menuitem_submenuindicator.png further to the right, as some of my lengthy menu option links may/will over-run the indicator image.

Any help you can give is greatly appreciated.

been there and looked at that before posting to this topic I'd already been through it and as another 'non-programmer' have not found it very helpful, obviously way over my head., I've been over and over and can't identify the relevant class to edit for these specific changes. I was hoping to get a pointer to the specific class to edit ...

Many thanks for your help. I now have my menu looking just right. I've learnt a lot about CSS in the process, so all is good. You've been very helpful.
