
Another issue on centering the menu

Posted by Zateha - 2011/02/28 17:58

Hey,
first of all I wanted to say "thanks" for the great mod you've written. I've barely ever seen a mod with such great possibilities of customization and usability.

However, I've got one problem: I'm rather new to Joomla! and started to create a homepage just two days ago. I downloaded, installed and customized the menu, but I am not able to move it into a centered position, so it's stuck at the very left of the page.

If you could provide me with any information on the topic, I'd be grateful.

Thanks for your time.

Kind regards,
Phil

Hello,

Remove "display: inline-block !important" CSS property for "#breadcrumbs" and ".ux-menu-container" elements and add the following CSS rules:

```
DIV.ux-menu-container
{
    text-align: center;
}

UL.ux-menu
    display: inline-block !important;
    zoom: 1;
    *display: inline;
}
```

Hi,

thanks for the reply. I did as you told me and it works in Firefox, but somehow neither in Opera, nor Google Chrome. Is there anything else I can do?

Kind regards.
Phil

Edit: Figured it out how to get it to work in Chrome. DIV and UL must not be capital letters and it works for it. The problem in Opera remains, anyway.

Hi Guys

Sorry to hijack but the subject is the same. My previous post was about centreing the menu. I've tried this code too and I get the same effect as described in my post - i.e. the menu first appears on the left and then only jumps to the centre after a second or two. Did you get this too Phil?

AriSoft - is there any explanation/fix for this please?

Thanks....

Jon

To Zateha, it doesn't mean "UL" and "LI" as capital letter or not. Tag names are not case-sensitive in CSS rules. About Opera, it looks fine on our side. Could you specify what version of Opera you use and provide screenshot where we can see the problem?
