Z-Index Issue

Folks,

I know z-index has been address in many forum posts here. I just installed Ari Ext Menu. It works great. I just can't seem to get the z-index set properly. I played with the z-index parameter within the module with negatives, 0, positives and blank and still can't get it set properly. The following line of html code is presenting the problem:

If I change the z-index to 0 through firebug, this works properly. Is there a way to set the z-index CSS Styles of the AriExt Menu module? Please let me know what the solution is here. Thanks in advance for all your help!

Regards,
Joe

Is there a way to PM you the link and credentials? I don't want to put them on a board.

Thanks,
Joe

Could you specify what is not working? Sub-menus are shown fine for us in FireFox browser.

When you hover on the menu on the Blue menu bar, it displays behind the AriMenu. It should always be on top.

Thanks,

This problem with top menu. You can fix it if add the following CSS rule:

BODY #menubar {position: relative;z-index: 30000;}

Thanks! Can it be added in the CSS Style of your module or should it be placed in the template custom.css?
