
Horizontal menu & submenu width

Posted by Perrywinkle - 2010/10/07 19:41

Hi, I've been trying to adjust the width of the Ext menu for a couple of days and can't figure it out.. :-(Tried most of the tips that were put here on the forums but they probably don't work because I'm using another template...

First off; I'd like to have the horizontal menu on full width. Thereby; my submenus are not all the same width. Both are pretty common problems (from what I've seen on here) but any adjustment I try to make doesn't do anything...

The website is <http://www.flowrijk.nl/> and the template I'm using is a standard SiteGround template.

Thanks in advance!

Hello,

Add the following CSS rules:

```
#pillmenu .ux-menu li a
{
    float: none;
}
```

```
#pillmenu .ux-menu li a .ux-menu-arrow
{
    right: 2px;
}

Hi,

This seems to work for the submenu's. They're all good now, as well as all the arrows. (Thanks! :)) The menu itself is still it's original size, where I want it to be wider. (as wide as the template; 956px). How can I do that?

Do you want to do menu items more wider or stretch background?

PS: We can't open your site, it requires credentials.

Took the credentials off now, so you should be able to visit it again, but I want the menu items to be wider, is that possible? It would be great!

Still can't find the CSS to make the menu any wider, I have centered it though. This should be a temporary fix to make it look a little bit better as it does now.

Try to use the next CSS rule:

#pillmenu .ux-menu-container .ux-menu LI.ux-menu-item-main
{
    width: 191px
}
```
