
Little problem on refresh or page change

Posted by cristikay - 2010/10/09 09:38

Hello.
First of all congrats for the great component you've created. I have a little problem, I resized the menu height using a method you gave to a user in a previous post. The problem is that on refresh or page change the menu appears for an instance smaller then resizes to the height I wanted. The address for the temporary joomla site:
<http://traduceritimisoara.com/eurekareisen.ro/>
Thank you in advance!
Cristi

=====

Re:Little problem on refresh or page change

Posted by admin - 2010/10/10 06:37

Hello,

In what browser this issue occurs? Could you explain what height do you want to resize that we can help?

Regards,
ARI Soft

=====

Re:Little problem on refresh or page change

Posted by cristikay - 2010/10/10 08:22

Hello again and thanks for the answer.
This is what I did, according to suggestions I saw you gave to other users in order to fix the height of main menu and sub menus and also remove the border from the entire menu. I want to resize the parent menu to 66px height and keep the buttons text aligned in the middle of the buttons.

```
/* height of main menu*/
.ux-menu-container .ux-menu a
{
    height: 32px;
    padding-top: 24px;
    font-family: "Trebuchet MS", Arial, Helvetica, sans-serif;
    float: left; /* IE6 floating fix */
}
/* height of sub menus*/
.ux-menu-container .ux-menu .ux-menu-sub a
{
    height: 10px;
    padding-top: 8px;
    font-family: "Trebuchet MS", Arial, Helvetica, sans-serif;
    float: none; /* IE6 floating fix*/
}
/* remove border of entire menu*/
.ux-menu-container UL.ux-menu LI a
{
    border-style:none;
}
```

I tested the menu in IE 6, 7 and 8, Google Chrome 6 and Firefox 3.6. The issue occurs in all, except Firefox.

Also, after applying the IE6 floating fix that you suggested in a post, the submenu in IE6 looks something like this:
<http://i55.tinypic.com/2lkti1j.jpg>

Is there a way to remove the 1px spacing between the main menu and submenu elements?
<http://i51.tinypic.com/9gzukl.jpg>

Thank you,

Cristi

Cristi

=====

Re:Little problem on refresh or page change

Posted by admin - 2010/10/11 11:50

Hello,

Regarding issue with height of menu, it seems this conflict with site template styles. About 1px padding, use the next CSS rule that remove it:

```
.ux-menu-container .ux-menu .ux-menu-sub
{
    margin-top: -1px;
}
```

Regards,
ARI Soft

=====

Re:Little problem on refresh or page change

Posted by cristikay - 2010/10/11 20:28

Hello.
I deleted one by one the template css files to test which one is conflicting with the menu css. After deleting all of them the menu still behaved as mentioned. Same happens now after I apply the `margin-top: -1px;` fix. The menu shows for an instance as before, with 1 px distance and then applies the fix. It's still strange but thank you for your support!

PS
For the "expanding" problem in IE6 is there a fix?
Cristi

=====

Re:Little problem on refresh or page change

Posted by cristikay - 2010/10/19 16:59

Hello.
Nothing about the IE6 submenu expanding problem?
Cristi

=====

Re:Little problem on refresh or page change

Posted by admin - 2010/10/19 18:20

Hello,

You can install IE Developer Toolbar for IE browser that investigate why this issue appears.

Regards,
ARI Soft

