
Help with submenu behind content, and alignment

Posted by bhmusic - 2010/12/31 03:19

I am new to CSS programing and love your ext menu, but am having trouble with sub menu hiding behind the sites content. It can be found here, <http://www.tourrica.com/costa-rica-facts> . I am also looking for a way to align the menu to the center as a posed to the left and maybe have the menu boxes the same size, is this possible?

Can any of these issues be solved via the "CSS styles" menu?

Thanks,
~B

Hello,

Add the following CSS rules:

```
.ux-menu-container UL LI,
.ux-menu-container UL LI:hover
{
padding-left: 0;
}
```

#topmodule .yjsquare_in, .yjsquare_yj3 .yjsquare_in,
#topmodule .yjsquare,
body #topmodule
{
overflow: visible;
}

Perfect! That worked great, talk about about great customer service!

That worked so well I decided to use the ext_menu on the main left menu but am having the same problem with it being behind other modules. <http://www.tourrica.com/> it is the left menu. Is it possible to get the "CSS styles" for this also?

Thanks again,
~B

Use the next CSS rules:

body #holder,
body #holder .inside
```

```
{
  overflow: visible;
}
```
