Hello,

Could you specify in more details what you mean? Styles of the article in normal view is different from styles of the article in lightbox? If yes, it seems your site template doesn't include necessary CSS files in component view. You can check component.php file of your site template or if you provide temporary access to your Joomla! backend by email, we can fix it for you.

ARI Soft

Hello:

First, thanks a lot for your quickly answer.

And yes the normal view is different with out lightbox than with lightbox, and the reason is because it is not using the CSS files.

But I donÒt know how I can repare it and I am not able to change in mytemplate/component.php and repare it because I donÒt know .php

Right now I am uploading my site to the server, if you tell me what I have to do I will try, other way, the site will be upload in about one hour and I have no problem to give you an temporary acces to my backend.

And again thank you very much for your support, itÒ's great.

Manuel DÐ½az.

We have sent mail again from our secondary mailbox. Find below text of the mail:

We can't edit component.php file of your site template, it seems the file doesn't have writable permissions. Add the following code into /templates/yoo_symphony/component.php file before tag:

I have got the same problem. How can I add styles to a article in the lightbox? As far as I can see the lightbox displays a iFrame to display the article. So somehow there I have to include a stylesheet? How can I do that?

The extension uses site template component view to show articles. This is standard Joomla! feature. In component view site template loads component.php file instead of index.php file from site template directory. You can include necessary CSS file(s) or add custom CSS styles to component.php file in site template directory.
