Article in Lightbox using a CLASS tag

Hello,

I am currently using the following code to open an article in a lightbox and it works very well...

{arisexylightbox activeType="article" width="750" height="535" id="112" title="Canadian Credit Counselling & Debt Solutions. We Can Help Secure Your Financial Future!"}{/arisexylightbox}

I need to change that to have the same article open in a lightbox but using a text link instead. I do need to assign a class to the link.

I have the article written, and a slideshow module displays it on the home page. I have tried the following with limited success, as instead of just the article, it shows the whole webpage...

Your help is greatly appreciated. I have searched the forums and was able to get the original code sorted out, but have had no success finding out how to change it to a link with a class attached.

Hi,

Thanks for the quick reply.

I tried the code you supplied and the lightbox pops up, but still has the entire website in it as opposed to just the article.

Here is a link to view a video of it in action. The text link is what I click on first and as you can see, shows the whole website. I need it to just show the article.

I then I click on the image link which works the way I want and it shows JUST the article.

Click for Video

Any idea?

Thanks,

Tony

Sorry, one more question, is there a way to add a title? The text that shows up in the bottom of the lightbox. I tried adding the following before the last rel="sexylightbox" title="Canadian Credit Counselling & Debt Solutions. We Can Help Secure Your Financial Future!"

but that breaks something and causes the layout of the slideshow to go crazy.

Thanks again.

Please ignore my previous question. I took out the punctuation and it seems to work fine.

Thanks again!

Add "title" attribute with necessary title to tag. If it doesn't work, could you provide link to page where we can see the problem?
