
Teacher monitor class tests

Hi All. I cannot seem to find a possible solution searching the forum and internet.

Ari Quiz is an excellent quiz program so far. Thanks.

My client who is a teacher for whom I implemented Ari Quiz with some custom JavaScript keypad to help speed up with maths speed tests now wants the following:

That a teacher can also register and be linked to his class's kids whom all takes the same test in class. Then the test results needs to go to that teacher's email, or be available in a report for that teacher and that test taken by that class. In other words, currently every user taking a test is for his own account, and groups in a class cannot take the test and have it emailed to the specific teacher. The only current solution I found is the print option

Since the website is public (anyone in the universe can access and register on it) and not hosted only for that teacher, and since a lot of schools and their teachers would like to accomplish the same from this website, how can one go about doing that? Is there a component that can do so, as a 3rd party component, or does Ari Soft has a solution for something like this request? Taking into account that the owner of the website don't want to manually have to do anything for accomplish this per teacher/class in the world.

Kind Regards
Chris

Hmm... maybe a quicker solution is to have the same option as the print button, but an Email button, where upon completion of a test the student can just click on the email button and type in an email address and the result page that looks like the printed can be emailed. And then one can have a cookie to store the previous email entered as a default email?

Hello,

The extension doesn't send questions with answers by email.

Thank you. Is this the place to make suggestions for future development?

If so I would like to make a suggestion. In my previous work we also implemented Ari Quiz and we had 5 departments with each a manager whom was overseeing employee development. we had to find a way to get the test results to each manager's desk. Since the test results was saved we could build 'n report linking the manager to employees according to joomla groups. That was some development. but that was a few years ago and I am not with that company anymore.

Now my current client wants a teacher to register and students to register and be linked to the teacher, so that when a test was completed the results could be emailed to her. Maybe the way such a system can work is that when a teacher register in Joomla they tick a checkbox to say they are a teacher and a teacher id code gets generated for a specific subject/group, then the teacher share that id with her class, and when they sign up on the public site where Ari quiz resides and uses the teacher's generated code, they become part of her class. And when tests gets written the results can be emailed to her for record, or she could login to find a report of her students to be further processed at school.

And at the end of the year she can drop all students linked to her, or a student can remove her link and link to another teacher or teacher's code by subject.

I truly belief this functionality will have a huge boost for Ari Quiz sales. What do you think?
