
Row Styling?

Posted by mickhartley2000 - 2014/10/30 20:07

Hi,

I'm new with these whole tables and I have a further question, and since my recent help was answered fairly quickly, I figured I'd give this a shot.

If I have a table such as the following (using a table of fruit as an example):

```
ode:
fruit,type
apple,granny smith
apple,golden delicious
orange,jaffa pear,seckel

Is there anyway that rather than using the styling (background colour to be specific) for the rows split between odd & even, that the table can style any rows where the fruit column equals: ie apple to green, rows with orange in the fruit column can be coloured to orange?

Essentially this is for an awards table so being able to highlight colours for gold silver & bronze would be incredibly good for me!

Any help as previous will be massively massively helpful.

Kind Regards
Mick

Hello,

Sorry, but currently the extension doesn't support this ability.

Are there any plans to allow for this kind of ability?

It could really smarten up the display of tables visually.

Kind Regards

We will think about implementation this feature in a future version of the extension.
