
SOLVED: Lower 40px of images being duplicated

SOLVED: For those who experience the same issue, it turned out it was a conflict between the image gallery I was using and this Slider. In turning off 'LOad jQuery Library' the issue was resolved.

I have a slider set up with images 1120 by 350 with the 1120 being the maximum my site will display at. I'm using the Responsive setting. On my screen the site is displaying at c. 980px wide and at that setting the bottom 40px or so are being duplicated. The first slide is fine, thereafter the problem kicks in and even when the first slide appears again, the 40px or so are duplicated like everywhere else. What it's doing is displaying my image as it should be on my screen / resolution, but also adding in an extra amount to get it to the full 350px deep.

My images themselves are saved at 1120 by 350, and those are also the dimensions entered into the slider config. Here is a picture of the problem:

I am also using the slider on the home page but with no problems at all.

Any ideas?

Thanks.
