Impressions and ideas

_____

Hi,

I just got started on making my first personality test.
Everything looks really good and simple.

But I have over 30 questions and it seems that the process to enter each question is quite tedious. You have to add questions one by one and every time press save and edit the quiz again.

Or is there a better way? I was looking for a way import the questions, but I couldn't find any.

What does the Facebook App id help/matter on the Facebook intergration?

Would it be possible to have percentage for each personility showed on the results page?
Also one nice feature would also be that if the results page could have some statistics available. F.ex. show how big percentage has had the same result as you just did.

Thanks!
